'68

If one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with success unexpected in common hours . . . If you have built castles in the air, your work need not be lost; that is where they should be. Now put the foundations under them.

Henry David Thoreau
Walden

We, the Senior Class gratefully dedicated the 1968 Tessahoc to a man who had devoted so much of himself to us. Not only has he unstintingly given of his time, but he has also extended his hand in friendship to each of us.

We began our freshman year together: he as a teacher, we as the students. And now as we prepare to leave, he remains to guide future classes through the high school years.

Although we can never show our true appreciation, we wish to express some part of our sincere gratitude to this man. The Class of 1968 is proud and honored to dedicate its yearbook to you, Mr. Donald A. Reade.

Prophecy

Here I am at the new Space Dome on the moon giving you live coverage of the 1988 presidential election. It is a great night not only for the candidates, Mr. Steven Park and Mr. Kevin H. White, but also for the class of 1968 at Cohasset High School from which both of the candidates graduated. Almost the entire class has shown up tonight to support both the candidates.

As I look around the dome I see that one of the first arrivals is the great Daniel Sullivan wearing his sacred Mohammad Ali sweatshirt. We also have two celebrities here tonight; Warren Judd, who took time off from his television show "Judd for the Defense", and U.S. Post Office General Thomas Keating. I see that Biffy Donavan, J. C. Peterson, and Paul Buckley are representing "Ah Ha" Beach in their Dewey Weber T-shirts. I am very glad to see Thomas Maher was able to tear himself away from his Smith Place Development Committee. Miss Pamela Bloomfield, star of stage, screen and television, is chatting with two old friends, the first lightweight couple and champions of the world, David Freedman and Cathy Davis. Professor Laidlaw is with his most avid follower, Wendy Kerr. Someone just informed me that Sandra and Stanley Stovold have just arrived in their private Boeing 707 which they both fly. I see Chuck Rose, Cathy Raymond, Dave LeDoux, and John Fitzpatrick discussing their recent appearance on the television show "Supermarket Sweep". I see that Byam McGoodwin has just arrived also. With this crowd I don't think that Pam Hill has to try to hide from Billy Murphy.

We have live entertainment tonight—a brother and sister act by Martha Grimes and Chris Stannard. We also have Janis Crosby singing her hit song "I left my Bells at C.H.S." and Jackie Thompson singing his personal favorite the theme from "the Graduate". Nancy Sencabaugh and Kathy Bailey have already gotten encores on their "routine". We are still waiting for Jefferson Thomas to finish tuning his guitar. It seems that the refreshments are terrific. I can see why as I look over at the "refreshment" table. Tina Watson, Ann Noonan, and Jeanne McNeil (Macka) are hostessing. Gracing us with their presence are recent Nobel Prize winners in the fields of Science and Mathematics, Mr. Mark Goodrich, Prof, Robert Flanagan, and Mr. Richard James. I see that the renowned hockey players Thomas Hall and James Feran are giving them free season tickets.

Earlier in the evening I had a chance to interview Shigeomi Suzuki, our foreign embassador from Japan. I asked him if he was enjoying the election proceedings. He replied, "Su-wa."

I overheard someone say that Bobby Henn, Sharon Collins and Ann Vecchioni are still living in that rustic area known as Beechwood. Beechwood is the only non-industrialized area on the earth according to "big businessman" John Henderson.

Fashion consultants, Kathy Hobbs and Shelly Gardener are listening to Nancy Crolius' modeling experiences. Sylvia Smith and David Reddie are discussing writing techniques, but seemed to be competing with John Mcneil who is relating some of the experiences he has been having in Florida.

Richard Towle, who has recently won the PGA golf Open is discussing his winnings with the great Jimmy Hurley, whose legendary baseball glove has been cast in bronze and put in the baseball Hall of Fame.

Dr. Jennifer Gleason is relating old times with Margie Hubbard R.N. head nurse at Mass. General Hospital. Permelia Singer is discussing Smith Alumnae-meetings with Martha Wilcoxon and her husband. I hear Roger Whipple and David Hassan arguing out a math problem on paper while MaryAnn Higgins figures the problem out on her patented pocket computer.

Sports reporter Sue McIntyre is finding out the latest happenings in the National Field Hockey association from President Alice Leonard and Vice-Pres. Susan Leonard. Sue is also trying to get a chance to talk to Anne Bessac.

Charles Haberstroh is trying to sell Bob Snowdale an antique white Ford station wagon. Bob Williams thinks that maybe he can use it at his new amusement park on the moon.

What's this? Greg Dormitzer and Julie Skehan, Marshalls at Arms, are hustling Jeanne Polito and Michele Buckley into the dome for public service awards.

By the way that Denise O'Connell and Barbara Reynolds are acting it is evident that they are enjoying the get together. Jeanette Emanuello and cousin Lynda Emanuello suggest that they stop by their new Pizza Parlor for possible prospects.

Attorney General Arleen Ashjian, and Secretary to the President, Ellen Souther are comparing shorthand speeds.

Pat Dowding and Sally Bohmer are congratulating Vickie Barnes on the success of her self-service gas station.

Denise Byrnes and Liz Mulhern have just given Mary Hall and Maryann Kelleher a copy of their recent book "How to Overcome Shyness".

It has been said that the young artist John Green designed the giant mural that is found along the east side of the dome. I spot him in the crowd flanked by Laura Fortier and Ann Spinzola who are treating him to a chocolate covered doughnut from Montilio's.

Jane Corddry, who is sipping a cup of tea, is listening to Janice Marks who is discussing her program to prevent the Bob White from becoming extinct. Margit Pearson, an old friend of Jane's, is telling her of the jewelry store that she and her husband have in the states specializing in diamond rings.

Beth Enders is telling Mary Stanton that she better get a real horse instead of a Mustang—they're safer.

John Hagen, who seems to have contracted a severe toothache is seeking the advice of hygienist, Kathleen Talarico. Julie Skehan is sympathizing with him completely.

As I take a final look around I see that some members of the class were unable to be here tonight. Among them is Joe Colpitts who has a reoccuring allergy. Bill Protulis had to stay home and babysit. No one seems to know why Phyllis Prentice and Denise Grant couldn't make it tonight because they are travelling. Kay Tousley has a severe case of speechlessness. Charlie Smith wired us that he would be late.

The final tabulations are now being made and it will only be minutes before we know who will be president-elect 1988. We will now pause for station identification

Basketball 67-68

Cohasset improved steadily throughout the season finally defeating the South Shore Vocational Technical School 73-62. In that game both teams played sloppily, but a productive second quarter brought us to a commanding lead.

Other well-played games include our first game against Sacred Heart of Kingston in which we lost 52-50 in the final seconds, and our game against Apponequet in which we lost by only ten points.

Generally, we improved against teams which we played twice and during the second half of the season we played much better than we did the first half of the season.

Despite our poor record, the team never lost spirit, and it was always 'up' for each game.

Captain Tom Keating averaged about 13 points a game while Bob Dutton and Dave Hassan averaged 12 and 10 points respectively. Stan Stovold, Kevin White, and Charlie Haberstroh performed capably when put into games.

Senior Life

Math

How do I hate thee, Physics? Let me count the ways.
For vectors connected head to tail—the start of all our troubles.
For orders of magnitude (Compute the number of ping pong balls that can fit into the space between low and high tide in Cohasset harbor).
For Sir Isaac Newton, who, needing a new math to explain kinematics and dynamics, happened to invent differential calculus.
For flummoxes and greebles and indexes of refraction (George Hamburg sits next to Jennifer; $n_{GH} = 1.00$, so he's invisible).
For table-top traffic jams of spring carts loaded with bricks.
For miles and miles of ticker-tape (Amalgamated Hotfeet and Consolidated Dust up .5) and psychedelic strobe lights.
By parallax we computed the flagpole to be somewhere in Scituate.
For Kelley's Fudge Factors 1, 2, and 3, we are grateful—especially in tests.
Labs and quizzes (duck soup) and brain-crunching.
In recognition, Remedial Physics dedicates this passage to Mr. Franey, who, according to reliable sources (himself), is perfection personified.

Each night the gypsy fortune-teller
Holds a seance with Fate.
Her long dark tresses are ebony breezes
Which seductively encircle the earth and its people.
The moon, her crystal ball, softly glows
As she casts her fortune-telling cards, the stars,
Across the sky, letting them fall where they will.
A man strolls the night, cursing the gypsy
And her nasty stars for his rotten life,
Unaware that he is the gypsy.

Parlez-vous francais?
That's what I learned today.
I learned of Mendel's theories
And Sutton's proofs,
Of Euclid's laws
And Newton's tests.
How can they know,
These teachers of mine,
That my mind is sunning
In soft, green meadows.

On Vacation with my family on Mount Tateyame

By the unforgettable kindness of the people in Cohasset, indeed I could learn many facts of life which in Japan it's very hard to know or carry out. Memories since last midsummer when I could not help feeling uneasy in talking with blue eyes—are pleasant to recall again, but I have to and would like to apply each of them to my future life.

I think Japan today is literally where the East and West, the new and old, find their meeting point. Her actions and attitudes in the near future will be truly important to the whole Asia.

Wen I go back home, I will have to keep studying much harder to understand the East and West, but I can truly say that those memories of my Cohasset year and of the sincere kindness of my U.S. Family, friends and teachers will help me and spur my effort.

New Zealand is a small, ruggedly beautiful country made up mainly of two 500-mile-long islands in the Pacific Ocean—about 1300 miles south-east of Australia. Her people are mostly of English descent, although some are Maoris (descendent from the Polynesians who first inhabited the country), Europeans, or a mixture. Living in this very free country, where there is freedom from overcrowding, smog, poverty, and racial conflict as well as freedom to speak, write, and vote, living with a "kiwi" family, being under a completely different educational system, and seeing our American environment from a distance and, therefore, in perspective was a very valuable, rewarding, and fun experience. The American Field Service wants many people to have a similar experience; they are busy getting people of different countries to "walk together and talk together" to get realistic views of other ways of life and to find some badly-needed peace. This is pretty vital, so why don't you get involved? You might even be lucky enough to get to New Zealand, which the Maoris call Aotearoa.
